

MOSTON IN VICTORIAN TIMES

Have you ever wondered who the people were who lived in your house over 180 years ago?

Inspired by the BBC television series “A House Through Time”, my own interest in Family History, living in an old house and my recent retirement, I have set myself up on a project to answer the above question for the Moston (to eventually include the ancient townships of Tetton and Elton).

In Moston alone circa 20 properties extant in 1840 are still being lived in today.

At the Annual Parish Meeting in March, I will briefly explain the methodology I will be using to achieve this project and share with you some of the research I have undertaken so far.

As the project progresses, I intend to share the research in the Moston and other Social Media pages and through a dedicated website (Assuming as another retirement project I can train myself to set it up!)
